SOCIALIST LEADER HAS NEW PEACE PLAN

Alexander Salvini, noted actor to be seen again tonight in "Pilgrim's Progress."

Congressman Meyer London, newly elected Socialist member from New York city, has just laid before the house his plan to bring peace in Europe. He has introduced a resolution calling on President Wilson to convene a conference of neutrals to offer mediation.

A Cautious Judge.
"Safety First" seems to be the motto of some of the judges in the West Indies. When an alien prisoner is brought before them they consider the possibility of a gunboat from the culprit's native land popping in to make trouble. It is told that a Helmi magistrate, on examining a prisoner, found that he was from Switzerland.
"Switzerland," he mused, "Switzerland has no seacoast, has it?"
"No seacoast, your honor," said the interpreter.
"And no navy?"
"No navy, your honor."
"Very well, then," said the judge. "I'll give him a year at hard labor."—Boston Transcript.

BEET SEED SCARCITY MAY PREVENT SUGAR PLANT'S REOPENING

Letter From Capt. Davidson Explains Situation Relative to Operating Janesville Factory This Year.

Captain James Davidson, principal owner of the Rock county Sugar company, in a letter written a few days ago to the Commercial club relative to the opening of the local plant, stated that the manufacturers of beet sugar were confronted with a considerable problem in procuring beet seed. But for that item he gives the idea that the local plant would begin operations this coming fall. He states that practically all the beet seed in this country comes from Germany, and that the allotment given American factories by the German government is 15,000 sacks which is not sufficient nearly to cover the plants already in operation and that while he has contracts covering the beet seed, owing to the difficulties in transportation and in getting imports through from Germany, it is quite unlikely that that seed will come in sufficient quantities to be of use to them for this spring. He states that it will be from thirty to forty days before he will know definitely as to the possibility of securing sufficient seed to cover acreage for the Janesville factory and without the assurance of this seed there is little use to make any preparations covering either acreage or the operation of the plant looking towards its operation in the fall.

It is hoped that Captain Davidson will be successful in securing the necessary seed. This letter was read at the meeting of the directors yesterday and the club has given Captain Davidson assurance of all the assistance which they are in position to render at such time as he definitely decided upon the opening of his factory.

The Titmore case which is on before the railroad commission at Madison, is of interest to local shippers, especially tobacco dealers and beet sugar shippers, inasmuch as it is proposed to increase the tariff on many commodities, including these. The railroads have brought this case to the attention of the railroad commission to offset the Titmore case which has to do with the ruling on rates in the north and central part of the state. Local tobacco dealers and others held a meeting yesterday afternoon to take action looking toward the protection of their interests.

An auditing committee consisting of H. H. Hargrett, S. M. Smith and F. H. Jackson was appointed to audit the books of the treasurer of the Commercial club prior to the annual meeting which occurs Feb. 14th.

Secretary Ed. McManis of the Madison Chamber of Commerce has been invited to make a short address before the Commercial club members at the annual meeting.

A resolution on the death of James Z. McLay was offered by the club and placed upon its records, a copy to be sent to the family and to the press. The resolution follows:

Resolved, That this association has been called upon to enter upon its records and to extend to the family of the departed the fact of the passing of a member whose activities and association were so much an inspiration, not only to the Commercial club, but to the entire community, as in the death of James Z. McLay.

Mr. McLay was a man in every sense of the word and his force of character impressed itself upon not only those with whom he came in personal contact, but upon the worth while movements in the entire community, and those who knew him were better for the companionship and acquaintance.

The Commercial club has lost a valued member, and his loss is identified with him as an active force and the community, while they will miss him, will be the better for having had his assistance.

It is resolved, therefore, that this resolution be placed on the minutes of the Commercial club and a copy sent to his family and to the press.

Janesville Commercial Club.

drove him to leave the City of Destruction and seek the Celestial City. The description of his experiences is intensely dramatic.

Not alone is the picture most interesting, but Col. Ray's lecture drives home the lesson of the allegory with tremendous organ music rendered by Mrs. Frances Ray, which added greatly to the presentation.

Col. Ray called attention to the lack of knowledge among the younger generation concerning this story, which with the exception of the Bible, has the largest circulation of any book.

This wonderful entertainment will be presented at the city again tonight. No one in the city should miss seeing it as it can not help but have a better influence on all.

TEST SEED CORN TO ASSURE GOOD CROPS

Department of Agriculture, at Washington Issues Special Bulletin on the Subject.

Of special value to the farmers of Rock county is the following excerpt from the last bulletin of the department of agriculture on corn. In view of the fact that special seedings are being held throughout the country at which this question is being discussed, the present article is timely. The government's plan of testing of seed corn for germination is a profitable farm practice—is an absolute necessity this year in many sections. In a number of districts the last crop of corn was so late in the season that the seed for the coming planting will be taken from late maturing or so moist when harvested as to call for special precautions. A high moisture content makes seed corn particularly susceptible to damage from freezing or heating. Farmers in the sections where corn failed to ripen normally who do not test their seed corn had seen to replace their corn with seed with good seed secured from other sources will be taking an unnecessary risk. It is also especially important for holders of seed in such districts to take unusual care during the remainder of the winter to protect it from freezing.

While complete testing for germination should take place shortly before the seed is planted, the statistics of the department believe that it is simple and forehandness for farmers who have any reason to be doubtful about the vitality of their seed to make a preliminary germination test with a few typical ears taken at random from the rack. If these preliminary tests show the seed is good, the farmers can continue his precautions to guard against weather damage. If, however, this test indicates that the seed is of low vitality, the farmer should at once make further tests to satisfy himself as to whether his seed corn generally is good or bad.

If a farmer finds his seed is bad he should take steps at once to meet the difficulty. The purchase of seed should not be delayed till spring, especially when so much corn seed was sections has been damaged. The farmer should secure his seed from reliable sources, buy it upon a guarantee, and get his seed of typical samples.

It is probable this year that many farmers have not followed the wise practice of selecting enough special seed from good crops to last them in an emergency for two or three years will have to buy seed. In buying seed farmers should try to secure corn of varieties best adapted to their section. The safest seed to be made to use is seed grown in districts where climate and soil conditions in general are similar to those at home.

If the farmer happens to have a stock of seed left over from the 1914 crop and doubts the seed saved from his 1915 crop, he would do well to test the older seed also and then use whichever shows the greatest vitality. Seed corn if properly cared for will retain its vitality for several years. Many farmers knowing this always select an extra amount of seed from an unusually good harvest.

MAY SIGN CONTRACT FOR THE NEW LIGHTS

Board of Public Works' Report Due to Be Submitted to Commission.

The board of public works will make their recommendations to the commission to the city commission on the contract for the material and equipment for the ornamental lighting system, and the council will consider the signing of the contract.

Besides this transaction the mayor and councilmen will consider the application that has been filed for the transfer of the saloon license now held by Sam Brown at 51 South River street, to John Karberg. One petition to transfer this saloon license was refused on the grounds that the party to receive the license was found not to be satisfactory to the council.

Three reports have been filed with City Clerk J. P. Hammariud to be presented to the commission for acceptance. The statement of the board of public works shows an unusually large appropriation for January, the total amount being $32,124.75. This is due to several notes that were paid by the board. The pay roll for the month of January was $1,165.55, and the teachers' pay roll $5,410.

During the last month the city experienced another slight epidemic in measles, according to the report filed by Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, the city health officer. At the opening of the year there were two cases up for diseases one for scarlet fever and the other for measles. During the month the measles spread until there were twenty-five cases of the disease on record. At the close of the month the number of cases had increased to thirty. Dr. Buckmaster. The vital statistics for the month of January, 1916, are: Births, 23; and 22 deaths. Thirty burial permits were issued.

The report of the municipal court showed that in January the court fees amounted to $15.93; fines, $63; and penalties, $23.

OLD TIME RIVALS IN GAMES TONIGHT

First and Second Basketball Teams
Play Beloit at That City To-Night.

Both basketball teams from the high school are prepared for the struggles tonight with the Beloit five. The game at the Line City. The first game is in fine condition after the game at Waukesha, and they are confident, but not too much, so that they can win from their old time rivals. Last year, it will be remembered, the Beloit five won from the locals in an elimination game played at Milton for one lone point. In football, too, for the past two years the Line City team have been winners and tonight they will play the Blue and White players to get revenge and come home with a victory. This object will be maintained all during the game and every man will play his best and hardest. The contest will be played on the college floor, so a small floor can not be feared. The first game tonight will be between the second teams from the two schools. This will be the first regular game to be played for the local scrubs. In a game recently played the Line City second string was defeated by the Delavan high school by a low score. This speaks good for their team and the local five will have their hands full to squeeze out a victory.
This week will prove a stemwinder for the first squad with the game tonight and a game with Richland Center on Friday night. This game will also be played away from home. Quite a few of the teams' followers are expected to accompany the teams to Beloit tonight.

HAUGHTON IN CONTRACT WITH GEORGE STALLINGS FOR FIVE YEARS' TIME

Boston, Mass., Feb. 1.—George T. Stallings has signed a contract with the new owners of the Boston Nationals to manage the team for five years, it was announced Monday night. His salary, considerably in excess of that which he obtained in the previous contract, is said to be greater than that ever paid any manager or player, except possibly Manager J. J. McGraw of the New York Nationals. It is estimated that the figure approximates $25,000 a year.
The manager of the Braves was already under agreement to direct the George Stallings is trying to get J. Wingo, the catcher, who is a member of the Cincinnati team. Wingo was signed last year by Herzog after he had been with the Reds, but the salary he is getting is too high for times of peace, and the Cincinnati club is willing to turn him over to Boston if a deal can be arranged.

A complete change has come over James A. Gilmore, so far as his attitude toward organized baseball is concerned, since the Federal league is a thing of the past he has changed his views. He makes the prediction that baseball will have a big boom next season because the players will have to respect their moral obligations and contractual rights. Rigid discipline will prevail, so that managerial authority will count full measure once more. Such statements from the man who induced players to break their contracts and ignore their obligations to organized baseball show he must have realized all along that his league was up against a tough proposition.

It scarcely is expected that any offer will be made for Fred Falkenberg, but Fred should worry. He has one of those ironclad contracts that does not expire until the end of the 1916 season and he is reasonably sure to get his money whether he plays or not. In the meantime Fred might write a treatise, entitled: "My $24,000 Piece of Emery." No use talking, but Fred practically was through as a big league pitcher when Henry Davis sent him to Toledo between the 1911 and 1912 seasons. But by use of the emery ball he had a splendid record with the Mudhens in 1912 and thus secured his chance to come back in Cleveland in 1913. On the strength of that showing he signed a $7,000 contract for three years with the Feds. Still using the emery ball in 1914 he retained his effectiveness, but forbidden to dally with it last year he slipped back and failed to win half of his games.

Tom Buttle, a Lorain (O.) boy, has signed for a trial with the Phillies, champions of the National league. Buttle, who is a southpaw, started the 1915 season with the Mason City team in the Central Association, but after winning one of his nine games was released. He finished the season with the independent team at Ionia, Mich. There his brilliant work on the slab attracted the attention of Scout Neal of the Phillies.

twenty-seven players to his southern training camp. The pruning knife will be applied by Manager Rowland during the next few days. Four pitchers are to be dropped, but their names are yet withheld, though assurance is given that Big Ed Walsh will not be one of those to go. Rowland believes that Walsh will come back in the coming campaign, and at any rate he is to be given a chance.

WELSH AND WILLIAMS IN DANGER OF LOSING TITLES BEFORE ANOTHER YEAR

Viewing the fistie champions in apparent security it would seem that few of them are in danger of losing their crowns during the present year. Two of them, however, are tottering on their pedestals, and might possibly tumble. Freddie Welsh can escape impending disaster by sidestepping everybody with a chance to whip him in twenty rounds, and Kid Williams' bantamweight crown seems to be hanging by a thread.

Gypsies And Death.

The custom of placing the property of the dead in their graves has always been followed by the true Romyany gypsies. It is due to some old tradition of ill luck attending the possession of an article whose former owner is gone, and much valuable property is buried in this belief. There is also a sentiment among gypsies against the possession of anything that has belonged to a dead person, because it serves to remind the living of the departed and inspire in them a dread of death. The custom of burying their property with gypsy dead dates from the earliest history of the Romyany tribes.

Examiner Who Encouraged Faking.
Bank clerks in England nowadays have to pass stiffer tests than their predecessors of a century ago. A candidate for a clerkship at the Bank of England in 1818 records that the only test set him was to sort up £100 of silver into £1 stacks, and the kindly examiner whispered, "Never mind, my lad, so long as you get 20 shillings in the last pound."—London Standard.

Police All Ears.
A British ambassador once had occasion to tell a grand vizier of Turkey that he had incontestable proof that there sat at the grand vizier's table every evening a man who reported all that passed to the ambassador of another power the next morning. It is said that the police of Paris and London vie with each other year after year in their claim that no important crime ever goes undiscovered. It was once wildly said of the police of Beirut, under the old regime, that they surpassed those of London and Paris in the fact that they knew of every crime and robbery before it occurred.—Christian Herald.

Alaskan Ocean Rocks.
The almost complete absence of life in the Alaskan oceans during the period of deposition of many thousands of feet of sediments has left the rocks practically devoid of fossils, which are so valuable in determining rock ages.

PARTY IDEALS.

There is always a deep-rooted sentiment in the minds of the true party man as to ideals of his particular brand of political doctrine. The majority of the true party men may spontaneously object to the action of some of the leaders on matters of importance, may even express their views publicly, but when the time comes for action they fall in line and do their duty like yeomen of the guard.

Much disappointment was expressed by many who attended the recent gathering of republicans in Madison over the failure of endorsement of a candidate for the United States senate. Some have gone so far as to claim that there is a subtle movement behind the whole affair and that some secret deal is pending that may upset all calculations.

It has been maintained that an endorsement by the two thousand republicans who were present at the gymnasium in Madison would have given the candidacy of any aspirant for the nomination next September an impetus that would have been hard to overcome. That a plan for a smaller convention of a hundred and ten hand-picked delegates will not have this force and the moral effect will have been lost.

It is certain that the rulings made by the presiding chairman, former Senator Hudnall, in deciding against the will of the majority of the delegates that the question of endorsement be taken up, has eliminated him as a senatorial possibility in the minds of many. His ruling was so unfair on the face of it, it was so parent that it had been prepared to meet just such an emergency, that Mr. Hudnall disappears as a compromise candidate from the political horizon.

WILSON'S VIEWS.

President Wilson's invasion of the middle west in support of his determination to win over the people of the United States to his way of thinking as to preparedness is being watched with interest by not only the politicians, but by the thinking men of the country. One eastern exchange commented upon the trip by stating it would determine whether the President sought re-nomination or not, that he would make his decision by the reception he met at the hands of the people.

This could hardly be a fair criterion for the President to go by. Take for instance, Milwaukee, one of the strongest of the pro-German communities in the United States, normally republican in politics, yet the reception that they tendered the chief executive of the United States was more than flattering. Party lines were thrown to the wind and all honor was paid to the man who is head of the national government.

In Chicago one writer states that the crowds that greeted the president were more curiosity seekers, who came to hear and see and not to be seen or heard. Be it as it may, the President has delivered his message. He has stated his point of view to the people. The address in Milwaukee was scholarly and well balanced. It expressed much of interest to the nation as a whole and was received as such.

Some of the pungent flashes that eliminated from his talk might be condensed into the following paragraphs that will express the ideas of the president on the subject of preparedness.

"We can not forget our forbears. We can not altogether ignore the fact of our essential blood relationships and, at the outset of this war, it did look as if there were a divinity in domestic sentiment which might lead us to some errors of judgment and some errors of action. But I for one believe that that danger is past."

"I am not upon this errand because of any unexpected situation. I have come to confer with you upon a matter which it would in any circumstance, be necessary for us to confer, when all the rest of the world is on fire and our own house is not fire-proof."

United States. It is subject to the orders of the governors of the several states; and the constitution itself says that the president has no right to withdraw them from their states even, except in case of actual invasion of the soil of the United States."

"As I came along the line of the railway today, I was touched to observe that on every standard, where a flag could be raised, there floated the stars and stripes."

"Let no one make you suppose that this is a money-making agitation. I would, for one, be ashamed to be such a dupe as to be engaged in it if it had any suspicion of that type. I am not as innocent as I look."

"I know that there are some things which stir every heart in America, no matter what the racial derivation, or the local environment, and one of the things that stir every American is the love of individual liberty."

"I sometimes think that it is true that no people ever went to war with another people. Governments have gone to war with one another but peoples, so far as I remember, have not, and this is a government of the people and this people is not going to choose war."

"Do not be deceived as to the colors of that flag. Those lines of red are lines of blood, nobly and unselfishly shed by men who loved the liberty of their fellow men more than they loved their own lives and fortunes. God forbid that we should have to use the blood of America to freshen the color of that flag; but if it should come to that, I am ready to assert the majesty and integrity of those ancient and honorable principles that flag will be glorified and purified again."

GATHERING THE NEWS.

The average reader when he picks up his newspaper scarcely realizes the real labor of obtaining the news that confronts his eye. The Milwaukee News makes a wise comment on this fact when it says that the wonders as so many in this busy life that people can not stop to waste much time over the marvelous inventions and systems which work with clock-like regularity in supplying the needs of each day, but the most common of all is the news-gathering organization which supply the material for the daily paper.

Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, said that it cost $1 a word to have the speech in the Reichstag of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg flashed to this country. While this was an absorbing topic the dispatches of the same day and time furnished news from all other parts of the world. Seated in the back row in the audience that heard Mr. Stone speak was a white bearded old man with a pocket of his fur-lined coat were filled with newspapers. When he heard the speaker tell of the cost to transmit Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech to this country he leaned over to a man who was sitting beside him and whispered: 'And I paid only a few pennies to read the speech.'

The news of the daily service of the newspapers on events of importance, and on affairs in which the American people are indirectly interested, is interested at all. But it is all in the day's work of this wonderful system of collecting the news as it breaks. Many remember the tense situation at the news of the sinking of the Titanic, and the waiting for the detailed reports of that great catastrophe of modern times.

The news from Calcutta is cabled to London, Hong Kong, Sydney and Tokyo, and then to New York. News from Zanzibar goes to Cairo or to Cape Town, then to London and New York. When Pope Leo XIII died in Rome the fact was announced in San Francisco in nine minutes from the instant when he breathed his last. When Port Arthur was taken by the Japanese in 1896 it came to New York after many hours although it passed through twenty-seven relay stations.

"The Associated Press organization is co-operative in its character, as a condition of membership is that each member agrees to furnish his fellow members with the news from his vicinity. While the great war has affected nearly every other relation, all of the great powers have permitted the transmission of messages over telegraph lines, otherwise America would not be so promptly informed of the events of the war."

The question is asked, what has become of the young man who used to send those sweet valentines to his best girl pleading such faithful devotion? Well, just at present he is answering her call to the telephone, and condescending after some urging to accept her invitation for a Leap Year dance.

As the day of the spring primary approaches the crop of aspiring candidates for the nomination of councilman is fast becoming as plentiful as mushrooms after a spring rain. Unfortunately the majority of the candidates will flourish and fade as do the mushrooms.

Really there is no excuse for property-owners failing to obey the law and clean their sidewalks. However, many ignore this provision or simply sweep off a path for their own use and let the public tramp through as best they can.

Now that the candidates for the selection of delegates to the national republican convention in Chicago from Wisconsin have all been named, the next thing to do is to familiarize yourself with the names of the men to be elected.

Where the poles have already been removed from the business district the improvement is so marked that one wonders why they were ever permitted to be erected in the first place.

Judging by some eloquent advertisements in the magazines, the true test of culture is not knowledge of literature or history, but the habit of smoking certain brands of cigarettes.

Again the nation is called on to deplore the fact that the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln can't be properly celebrated, since they don't come in the baseball season.

Healed that the farmers would rush to the defense of the government with their pitchforks.

Who says the United States is not ready for war when two of our statesmen gathered for the preparedness convention engage in fistfights on the street?

The possibility of a late spring is viewed with alarm not so much on account of injury to crops as because of the delay in the baseball season.

While it is said to cost $18,000 or more to educate a naval cadet, it is admitted that they are awfully good dancers and football players.

The persons who think a play must be indecent to succeed should remember that audiences are not made up wholly of theatre people.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

The "Reverse Side" poetry is growing fat and stale; it only means to assert the brown October ale. The poets have for many years sung praises to the fall. But I for one cannot quite see this autumn stuff at all.

The "harvest moon" may be all right; it may be pert and cute; it only means to me that ma must have a new fall suit. The golden leaves are pretty, but they don't enthrall my soul; they simply mean that I must go and spend my dough for coal.

This beautiful haze of autumn days is sultry in metered tone. It means that I must go and buy my storm windows for my home. The golden pumpkins are all right, but still they get my goat. Reminding me that I must go and steal an overcoat.

About the only difference discernible between a real diamond and an imitation is the price. Little things often mean much in this world. There is something of a tremendous amount of responsibility on a suspender button.

A young Hickeyville husband is in very bad with his wife just at present. She proudly placed her first blanchet before him on a plate at dinner one evening. He surreptitiously slipped it into his pocket. Later he took it to a jeweler, had his initials engraved upon it and began wearing it for a watch chain. He could make money by having her bake them by the dozen and selling them for door knockers.

Nobody kin look more innocent than the feller who hasn't paid his fare. Between cooking the meal, and washing the dishes, the average woman sort of loses her appetite.

One Sort of Advertising. A Detroit firm advertised in Kansas City: "Smoke five of these cigars, and if you do not say they are the best 5-cent cigar you ever smoked, return the bands and get your money back." The firm is in receipt of the following communication: "Gents: I tried five of your cigars and enjoyed them very much. They are the best I ever smoked, but as I cannot say they are the best I ever tried, I ask you to return my money. I enclose bands."

How About the Boat Fare? Serbia has given medals to the American soldiers who saved the country from disease. Can a scientist get back home on a medal?

Encouraging Thrift In Children

A practice fast gaining in popularity with thoughtful parents is that of starting a Savings Account for their children. Such accounts can be opened in the child's name or in the parent's name "in trust" for the child. The wisdom of this is evident. The child is encouraged to save and accumulate to a material sum. We solicit accounts of this nature and pay interest at 3 per cent per annum, compounded semi-annually.

Iron In the Ocean.

A piece of iron will sink to the bottom no matter how deep the water is, because water is only slightly compressible. If water were highly compressible, as air is, the water at a great depth would be much denser and therefore heavier, and an object would sink until it reached a point at which its weight would be less than that of the water which it displaced, and there it would float, as clouds float in the atmosphere. But a cubic foot of iron weighs more than a cubic foot of water at a depth of two miles, just as it does at the surface, and therefore continues sinking until it reaches the bottom.—Christian Herald.

Conservation.

"And," continued the lecturer, "warrant you that there is not a man in this entire audience who has ever lifted his finger or in any way attempted to stop this awful waste of our forests and our lumber supply. If there is I want that man to stand up."

There was a slight commotion in the rear of the room, and a nervous little man rose to the occasion—and his feet. And now, my friend, will you explain to me just what you have come to the forests of our nation? With the utmost gravity and solemnity the little man said, "I have used some toothpick twice."—Harper's Magazine.

JANESVILLE FREIGHT RATE TO MILWAUKEE FOUND EXORBITANT

J. N. Tittmore Has Evidence to Present Showing Rates Are 26 Percent Higher Than in Iowa.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Feb. 1.—That the rates of Beloit and Janesville are interested in the railroad hearing here on the Tittmore complaints is indicated by the exhibits introduced by J. M. Tittmore, indicating that the freight rates in Wisconsin are higher than in Iowa for the same distances and the same commodities. Testifying on the stand Tittmore claimed that the rates were higher in Wisconsin than in Iowa in 1903 and that they were still higher. His complaint asks for adjustment of all of the rates in the state.

In the exhibit presented to the commission, Mr. Tittmore showed that rates from Milwaukee to Beloit were 26 percent higher than for the same distance in Iowa and 26 percent higher than the same distance to Janesville, on first class less than car lots. Following is the complete comparison on all classes of freight between Milwaukee and Janesville with the same distance in Iowa, as shown by the Tittmore exhibit.

Tittmore on Stand.

Under cross-examination of C. C. Wright, general counsel for the Northern Western line, J. N. Tittmore testified today that he was not in favor of a rigid distance tariff schedule. He said the distance tariff should be flexible and should be changed by the commission just as they now change rates.

This was the second day of the rate hearing and Mr. Tittmore since three o'clock yesterday afternoon has been under the cross-examination of the railroad attorneys. It begins to look as if it would take the entire week to finish the case. Most of the testimony is highly technical, and is being given to a comparison of rates in Wisconsin with those in Iowa, Minnesota and other states. Mr. Tittmore contends for an adjustment of the Wisconsin rate schedule. He says our rates are higher than those in other states.

PARENTS-TEACHERS MEETING AT HIGH ON FRIDAY NIGHT

First Meeting of Students' Parents and Teachers to Be Held on Friday Night.

The first of the parent-teacher meetings will be held at the high school on Friday night, February 4th, at seven-thirty o'clock. It will be a meeting to which all parents who have children in the high school and anyone interested in the school work are invited to attend. Last year a number of these meetings were held and many grown people came. At the last one in the spring between seven and eight hundred visited the building.

Between seven-thirty and eight-thirty Friday night there will be an open house and all teachers will be in their rooms. Parents are urged to go to the rooms and meet the teachers who are in charge of their children.

Matters can be talked over regarding the students' work which will tend to better the relations between the teachers and the students and between all those.

At eight-thirty o'clock there will be a general meeting in the assembly hall. A program has been arranged and a number of persons will give short talks. Mr. Loring will address the audience on athletic matters, Beth Bailey, teacher of domestic science, will talk on the social activities of the school. Others will tell of the work which is being done in the school in connection with the musical organizations, the debating teams, the high school orchestra and girls' glee club will give a number of musical selections.

After the meeting there will be other meetings at later dates and at some time in the spring an exhibition of the work of all the departments will be held. All parents are urged to attend this meeting Friday.

Remember the Military Ball at Assembly hall tonight.

I. O. O. F. OFFICERS
HERE FOR THE BALL

General Commander of Patriarchs Militant Arrives This Morning to Confer Decoration of F. H. Koebelin.

General A. P. Stocker of Mainsburg, Ohio, commander of Patriarchs Militant of the United States and Canada, arrived this morning to attend the fourteenth annual military ball to be given tonight at the Assembly hall by Canton Janesville No. 9. Preceding the dancing, a decoration of Chivalry, an unusual honor, will be conferred on F. H. Koebelin by General Stocker and other Patriarchs Militant officers.

Brigadier General Burne Pollock and staff of Wisconsin and J. P. Doyle, special aid to General Stocker, will arrive this afternoon.

The military ball to be given tonight promises to be one of the most successful held by the Canton No. 9. The ceremony of the uniformed members conferring the degree is expected to be most interesting. This is the fourth Grand Decoration of Chivalry that has been conferred in the state of Wisconsin.

The arrangement committee is composed of G. G. Waterman, Charles Ward, C. E. Snyder, J. W. Van Bynum and William P. Dett. The floor committee: George G. Waterman, Charles H. Chase, Edward O. Smith, L. P. Gage and L. V. Paul.

Members of the Canton and ladies will comprise the reception committee. Hatch's orchestra will furnish the music.

REVERSE JUDGMENT IN ONE LOCAL CASE

Supreme Court Hands Down Several Decisions at Opening Session This Morning.

Madison, Feb. 1.—The supreme court this morning handed down several opinions in various actions pending at the session of the court against T. P. Burns and the Janesville Baiting Mills. The court reversed the judgment and granted the call for a new trial unless the respondent in writing accepted a judgment for $100 and costs filed with the clerk of the trial court within twenty days. Interest to date from Feb. 3, 1912. The state was brought to recover a balance of $200 on the ground of the installation of a winding machine.

Other decisions handed down were: In the case of Rock vs. Ekern the court held in favor of Justice Siebeck. The contract as proved is against the public policy of this state and the trial court erred in permitting the plaintiff to recover thereon. The court and district attorneys to allow the plaintiff to assist in the prosecution of Fowler under his private employment by the defendant, does not constitute an act of expropriation of its illegal character and affords no excuse to enforce it.

The state prohibits the sale of liquor to all full blooded Indians, is the opinion of Justice Kirwin. He says: "The court is of the opinion that the construction placed upon the statute by the attorney general is correct and acquiescence on the part of the legislature merely that the statute prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquor to all full blooded Indians. It follows that acquiescence must be affirmed."

"But there was his outstretched hand—should she ignore it? Anger swayed her—yet something within her, and something in Storm's eyes and his manner, pleaded against cutting him dead. With furiously red cheeks but sweeping aside the cost, Helen put out her hand. "It was nothing," she said quickly. "Do not think of it." Then she repaid Storm's impulsive stupidity, as she thought it deserved, by catching at something Seagrue was saying and falling to see Storm again. The engineer had come up prepared really to say how grateful he was; he found himself, in a fleeting second, already well launched on the social totem and shooting toward the bottom of a long hill. Seagrue, almost before Storm's back was turned, was laughing at Helen and pointing to her glove. The white, soft kid now bore beyond repair the heavy, black fingerprints of the engineer's hand.

Questions and banterings from her companions contributed nothing toward restoring Helen's composure. But as the group moved to the waiting motor cars, she unostentatiously drew the offending glove over her wrist and threw it away. One pair of eyes watched the action closely; Storm, collecting his wits after his social disaster, noted what she had done. He was too philosophical to resent it. Instead, crossing the platform, when the party had driven away, he picked up the discarded glove and put it in his pocket.

Nor did he, in his turn, escape unseen. As one of the cars whirled around a nearby corner, Helen, looking back at the scene of her annoyance, saw Storm picking up something white; she knew it was her glove.

On reaching home—where the ladies were taken to their various rooms and the men went to their business—Helen, from her own room overlooking the passing track, watched the freight bearing Storm, draw out and stop before the station for orders.

Turning to her glass more than once to see whether her cheeks were still as flushed as they felt, she was gratified to find that traces of her humiliation had disappeared. Her mind, from which she had tried to dismiss the whole incident, was now assailed by a rebellious curiosity concerning what she had seen happen on the distant platform when Storm crossed it to pick up her glove. As his frank eyes returned again and again to her imagination, something seemed to call her strongly, back to where he still was detained. She resisted longer; then surrendering to a sudden impulse, she ran downstairs, while her guests were disposing themselves, stepped into her racing car, drove to the station and alighting just as Storm came out of the telegraph office, she herself began to search at the edge of the platform for something. The engineer, after an interval, deliberately joined her.

"You have lost something."

Helen glanced up with affected surprise. "Nothing of moment. I missed a ring when I got home," she fabricated lightly, "and one of my gloves. I thought I might have dropped the one with the other here."

Storm's hand moved toward his blouse, then regaining his composure, he withdrew his hand, empty, and affected to search along the roadway with her. It was a brief duel of wits, but one in which the railroad man was no longer at a disadvantage. He was quite willing to search as long as she would linger and Helen, more than a little interested, was capricious and did linger until Storm's slow sentences began once more to bear too directly on the episode of the wreck and his gratefulness; then with a hasty goodbye she started for home and Storm, climbing into his engine, pulled out with his long train.

General Holmes, in the meantime, with his two jealous groups of directors, was striving in his drawing room to arrive with them at a mutually satisfactory settlement of the proposed stock issue. In reserving 30,000 shares of this for himself and his friends, Holmes had allotted 20,000 to Seagrue and his Wall street associates. This both Seagrue and Capelle had bluntly refused to accept, since the proposed line would work havoc with the through and local traffic of the Colorado and Coast road. Seagrue demanded instead an equal distribution of the new stock. Holmes and Rhineland, after a long conference, put the motion flatly to the eleven directors. Seven of them supported President Holmes' proposal.

Seagrue, white with anger, rose. "Cancel our allotment, then. We will fight."

"Put, tut, Earl," protested Rhineland. "That's no way to talk."

"We will fight," echoed Capelle, equally wrought up. "Seagrue is right. If we are to be treated in this way we'll parallel your tracks!"

Rhineland, Holmes and their associates tried in vain to pacify the two; their efforts were useless. Hard words passed and more threats were uttered; the meeting broke up in disorder.

Seagrue and Capelle retired to an adjoining room. Helen passed before them down the hall. Capelle glanced at her and looked toward Seagrue. His face stretched into one of his hollow grins.

TRIANGLE PROGRAMS START AT PRINCESS

Two Good Pictures, "The Iron Strain" and "A Game Old Knight," Shown For New Program Leads.

The Princess Theatre initiated last night the start of a series of Triangle Pictures, which the management has arranged to show hereafter, in the form of Dustin Farnum in "The Iron Strain" and Chas. Murray in a Keystone comedy, "A Game Old Knight," as features. These first two films were most pleasing to the large audience present and stirred in them the hope that the rest of the Triangle productions to come will be equally as good. The result of expert directing of the many difficult scenes in last night's program was easily detected, for the Triangle has the distinction of putting up their films in the very best of manner.

Chas. H. Murray made quite a hit in the screaming funny Keystone farce, "A Game Old Knight," the preliminary event of the evening. "The Iron Strain" with Dustin Farnum and Enid Markey followed, and considering the stellar acting of the principals, the interesting thread of the story and the rapid action, certainly nothing but praise could be sung of the picture. The same features will be shown this evening.

DUSTIN FARNUM AS A HOOSIER EDITOR

"The Gentleman From Indiana," Seen in Pictures at the Apollo.

"The Gentleman From Indiana," Bost. Telegraph's much vaunted means of bringing Dustin Farnum back to the Apollo yesterday after quite an absence. While Dustin is rather plump and rosy checked to resemble a Hoosier, yet he made the picture play a thoroughly interesting one.

In this he was ably assisted by Miss Wilfred Kingston, a very attractive little comedienne. The story is a little contrived and the situations well handled. This was the first picture the Pallas people have released. The future ones promise well for the Paramount Program.

AT THE PRINCESS.

"The Lamb" to be Seen Wednesday. The Lamb, the celebrated character actor, Douglas Fairbanks, has toured the country with great success. He will be presented in an entirely new play at the Princess on Wednesday and Thursday. The event marks Mr. Fairbanks' debut as a screen star here, which promises to disclose a big hit he scored in "The Lamb" in New York.

The type is the familiar New York one of a dandified youth who has yet to find himself. He is exiled to the western wilds by the coldness of his sweetheart, who does not think he is enough of a man. The young New Yorker has a misadventure in getting off the train in Arizona. He is transported across the Mexican border and gets mixed up in an unpleasantness between the federals and the Yaquis. There he discovers his sweetheart also a prisoner of the savage Yaquis. They handle a machine gun with deadly effect against the redskins. When ammunition is all exhausted the United States cavalry arrive upon the scene and save the boy and the girl.

Mr. Fairbanks' leading lady in the production is the talented and beautiful Miss Seena Owen, who did such clever work in "The Fox Woman." Others in the large cast include Monroe Salisbury, Alfred Paget, William E. Dooley, Kate Toncray, Lillian Langdon, Captain Dalton and Eagle Eye, the Indian rough rider and acrobat.

Some of the finest battle scenes presented on the film stage are to be seen in "The Lamb." In fact, it has been described as a miniature "Birth of a Nation." D. W. Griffith, the famous author of that southern classic, supervised the rehearsals of "The Lamb," and W. Christy Cabanne directed it.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Miracle of Life," a Sensation in New York. Thousands of delegates from all four corners of the country and many from Canada who attended the American Industrial Exposition and Vocational Training Conference held recently at Madison Square Garden, New York, witnessed the initial performance of "The Miracle of Life."

Mrs. Clarence Burns, a noted New York clubwoman, and head of the Little Mothers' Aid Society, was responsible for the showing of "The Miracle of Life" at the exposition. Several days previous to the opening of the conference, Mrs. Burns attended a private showing of the picture and was so deeply interested in the importance of its theme that she requested that it be shown at the sessions of the exposition. Her request was granted. This was the first time in the history of the conferences that a motion picture was made a part of the exposition.

"The Miracle of Life" was not only endorsed by Mrs. Burns but by the entire delegation in attendance at the exposition.

"The Miracle of Life" will be shown at the Majestic on Wednesday only.

"DAMAGED GOODS."

Endorsed by Men of Prominence in the United States.—To be Shown at the Myers Theatre. The management of the Myers theatre are to be complimented for bringing to our city a production like "Damaged Goods," which will be shown at the Myers theatre on Wednesday, February 2nd, which, according to some of our most prominent citizens teaches a very strong sermon. It is unquestionably the greatest moral uplift drama that has ever been presented. Richard Bennett as the principal character brings to the audience the terrible truth of social conditions by his restraint and natural acting. Though dealing with fearful subjects, the play is singularly free from objectionable features or vulgarity of any sort. It is essentially a sermon as are the writer's words which many clergymen read from the pulpit. It is a tragedy in which disease brought about by a wine supper and indiscretions which followed a fit of intoxication wrecks many lives and brings about untold misery. The scenes in the hospital, bringing before the eyes most vividly the awful havoc wrought. The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, after seeing "Damaged Goods," preached the sermon in the Plymouth church of Brooklyn on the text from Exodus: "The sins of the father shall be visited on the children unto the third and fourth generation." In it he said a wave of immortality has swept over the earth. It is the subject of conversation in the street cars, in the office and store and at the family table. Such authorities as Dr. Kelley of Baltimore, and Dr. W. W. Keene, the great surgeon of Philadelphia find the explanation of this singular breakdown in morals. People of fine physique who can not get their true match in the sphere where they were born and must by the holiest of all instincts, that of truth, seek upward by all means, time has surely come for the public school teacher, the educator, the lecturer, the physician and the parent to and this guilty silence and to lift the wreath from that diseased bag named Lust, that has so long masqueraded as an angel of light. C. M. Allen, former warden of Joliet prison, fittingly said: "To see this picture is to learn in two hours what writers and lecturers have failed to do in centuries." Willis O. Nance, M. D., chairman Chicago city council, committee on health says: "I regard 'Damaged Goods' as the greatest moral and sociological play ever produced." Walter Laidlow, D.D., Secretary New York Federation of churches says: "Damaged Goods" seen here by hundreds of thousands without a single unfavorable criticism. Newton D. Baker, Mayor of Cleveland, says: "Damaged Goods" was given here until the auspices of the Ministers' Union and Academy of Medicine and is surely a sermon of great social value." C. P. Stokes, surgeon general of the U. S. navy stated: "Damaged Goods" shown here and its moral effect has left a strong impression for good upon the community." Henry T. Hunt, mayor of city of Cincinnati: "Damaged Goods" officially endorsed here. It was patronized by the highest class of citizens and was universally endorsed by the newspapers and the public." Frederick R. Green, secretary American Medical association: "The American Medical association has been interested for many years in the education of the public on the prevention of disease and the enlightenment of the ignorant on the terrible ravages and awful consequences of venereal infection. "Damaged Goods" drives home a wonderful lesson." At the expense of the Myers management every physician, clergyman and city official in this city, as well as those in outlying towns within a radius of twenty miles, are invited to attend the 10:30 a. m. performance. Call at the Myers theatre box office now for your tickets to avoid disappointment. "Damaged Goods" will not be shown again in any other town within a radius of twenty miles. Performances for the public will be held at 10:30 a. m., 12:30 noon, 2:00 p. m., 3:30 p. m., 5:00 p. m., 6:30 p. m., 8:00 p. m., and 9:30 p. m.

AT THE APOLLO.

Two Big Stars in "Jane."

For Wednesday the Apollo announces a screen adaptation of Chas. Frohman's greatest comedy success, "Jane," in which Charlotte Greenwood and Sydney Grant share the stellar honors.

The original play by W. H. Lestock was produced in the early nineties at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, and was then taken to New York, where it had a record-breaking run at the Madison Square Theatre, with Charles Hawtree as the original "Shackleton," Lottie Venable as "Jane," and Charles Brookfield as "William."

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

67 DAISY DEAN

Harold Lockwood is rapidly becoming famous for his success in romantic roles. Lockwood is one of the finest looking young leading men on the screen today. Popularly, however, has not spoiled him, for it is his ambition to excel as an actor, and in spite of versatility and a finished technique, he is totally above playing to the gallery. The hero of "The Buzzard's Shadow" and "The Other side of the Door," is the American type, tall, clean-cut, of athletic build, with brown hair and the bluest of blue eyes. As John Montgomery, he is ideally cast in the character of a gentleman of the early San Francisco days, whose fortune he counts up with the wild, unscrupulous life of Californian adventures of that romantic period.

MARGUERITE CLAYTON ADORES JACK FROST

Marguerite Clayton is experiencing her first winter in the cold and snow. Having lived all her life in the sunny west, she is enjoying the cold weather and says it cannot become too cold for her.

Miss Clayton made her first attempt at ice skating recently with more or less interesting results for herself and the spectators who were fortunate enough to view the trial. However, she practices regularly and day by day makes fewer falls and more progress.

LOIS MEREDITH IS "MOTHER" OF SIX

To be only eighteen and yet to have to look after a brood of six younger brothers and sisters is considerable a contract, yet that's the true of Lois Meredith, the screen actress.

When she travels she carries them all with her, a similar instance probably never having occurred in stage history before.

It is pleasing to know that the plucky little woman receives good engagements, and has one now under the direction of Donald Mackenzie, who has produced Fred Jackson's "Precious Packet."

Theda Bara has been selected to create the leading part in a new feature picture entitled "Gold and the Woman," being filmed under the direction of James Vincent. H. Cooper Cliffe, George Walsh, the Indian

"DAMAGED GOODS"

With RICHARD BENNETT and Original Broadway Cast

The great drama of sin's consequences—a stirring plea for a pure life before marriage to make impossible the transmission of hereditary taints to future generations—a graphic portrayal of the physical ruin that follows in the wake of those who tread the flowery path of worldly pleasures.

This production is heartily endorsed by thousands of the best physicians and clergymen:

"Damaged Goods" will not be shown in any other Theatre in Janesville, or in any city within a radius of twenty miles.

Every parent interested in their children's future shouldn't neglect seeing "Damaged Goods," as it teaches a more powerful lesson than words can express.

RESERVE SEATS at Box Office. No children under 14 years admitted, unless accompanied by parents.

Positively the greatest production ever shown in Janesville. After seeing "Damaged Goods" you will decide the vital question:

AM I FIT TO MARRY

What Leading Citizens said after seeing "Damaged Goods":

REV. EARLE WILEY—"I am confirmed in the opinion that we must take up our cudgels in a crusade against the modern problems brought to the fore by 'Damaged Goods.' The report that these diseases are increasing is enough to make us get busy on a campaign against them."

SURGEON GENERAL BLUE—"It has a most striking and telling lesson. For years we have been fighting these conditions in the navy. It is high time that civilians awakened to the dangers surrounding them and crusaded against them in a proper manner."

JUSTICE DANIEL THEW WRIGHT—"I feel quite confident that 'Damaged Goods' will have considerable effect in educating the people of the nature of the danger that surrounds them."

ELKHART LAKE WOMAN FINDS SWIFT RELIEF

Mrs. Brieske Gets Wonderful Results From Remedy.

Mrs. W. C. Brieske of Elkhart Lake, Wis., after long suffering from derangements of the stomach and digestive tract, tried a dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. The results she had long hoped for came quickly—with the first dose.

In a letter she told of her experience: "Am writing to let you know that your medicine has done me a lot of good. I have had more bottles to take. I have passed between five and six hundred acetons, varying in size from a pea to a large hickory nut. I feel a whole lot better now. I am going to have my mother try your wonderful remedy."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much as whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee. No satisfactory money will be returned.

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule contain a large quantity of plain syrup. A pint of granulated sugar with 32 pint of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes, gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 4 cents, a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.00—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it cures the dry, hoarse or tight cough and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with quinine, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" and accept nothing else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"It isn't possible, monsieur." Those arrangements are already fixed.

"You will countermand them."

"But there is no time—"

"You can get into telephonic communication with Port Aviation in two minutes."

"But the passengers have already been promised—"

"You will disappoint them."

"The start is to be made in the first flush of daylight. How could you reach Port Aviation in time?"

"In your motor car, monsieur."

"It cannot be done."

"It must! If the start must be delayed until we arrive, you will give orders that it shall be so delayed."

For a minute the minister of war hesitated; then he shook his head definitely.

"The difficulties are insuperable."

"There is no such thing, monsieur."

"I am sorry, it can't be done."

"That is your answer?"

"It is regrettable, monsieur."

"Very well!" Lanyard bent forward again, took a match from the stand on the bedside-table, and struck it.

Very calmly he advanced the flame toward the cigarette containing the roll of inflammable film.

"Monsieur!" Ducroy cried in horror. "What are you doing?"

Lanyard favored him with a look of surprise.

"I am about to destroy these films and prints."

"You must never do that!"

"Why not? They are mine, to do with as I like. If I cannot dispose of them at my price, I shall destroy them!"

"But—my God!—what you demand is impossible! Stay, monsieur! Think what your action means to France!"

"I have already thought of that. Now I must think of myself."

"But—one moment!"

Ducroy sat up in bed and dangled his legs over the side.

"But one moment only, monsieur. Don't make me waste your matches!"

"Monsieur, it shall be as you desire, if it lies in my power to accomplish it."

With this the minister of war stood up and made for the telephone, in his agitation heedless of dressing-gown and slippers.

"You must accomplish it, M. Ducroy," Lanyard advised him gravely, puffing out the flame; "for if you fail, you make yourself the instrument of my death. Here are the plans."

"You trust them to me?" Ducroy asked in astonishment.

"But naturally—that makes it an affair of your honor," Lanyard explained severely.

With a gesture of graceful capitulation the Frenchman accepted the little roll of film.

"Permit me," he said, "to acknowledge the honor of monsieur's confidence!"

Lanyard bowed low and gravely. "One knows with whom one deals, monsieur! And now! If you will be good enough to excuse me."

He turned to the door.

"But—where are you going?"

"Mademoiselle," Lanyard said, pausing on the threshold—"that is, the young lady who will accompany us—is waiting anxiously in the garden out yonder. I go to find and reassure her and—with monsieur's permission—to bring her into the library, where we will await monsieur when he has finished telephoning and—ah—repaired the deficiencies in his attire, which one trusts he will forgive one's mentioning."

He bowed again, impudently, gayly, and—when the minister of war looked up again sheepishly from contemplation of his naked shanks—had vanished.

In high feather Lanyard was making his way down to a door at the rear of the house which gave upon the garden—in his new social status of governmental protegee disdaining any such commonplace avenue as the conservatory window whose fastening he had forced on entering. And, boldly unbolting the door, he ran out into the night to rejoin his beloved, like a new man walking to new life.

But she was no more there—the bench was vacant, the garden deserted, the gateway yawning to the street.

With the low, curt cry of one staggered by a brutal blow from a trusted hand, Lanyard turned from the bench and stumbled out of the garden and to the junction with the cross street. But nowhere in the compass of their perspective could he see anything that moved.

After some time he returned to the garden and quartered it with the thoroughness of a pointer beating a covert. But he did this hopelessly, bitterly aware that the outcome would be precisely what it eventually was—that is to say, nothing.

He was kneeling beside the bench—

"What—I Repeat—Are You Doing There?"

scrutinizing the turf round about with microscopic attention by aid of his flashlight, seeking some sign of struggle to prove she had not left him willingly; and finding none—when a voice brought him momentarily out of his distraction.

He looked up wildly, to discover Ducroy standing over him, his stout person chastely swathed in a quilted dressing-gown with trousers, his expression one of stupefaction.

"Well, monsieur—well?" the minister of war demanded irritably. "What—I repeat—are you doing there?"

Lanyard essayed a response, choked up, and gulped. He rose and stood swaying, showing a stricken face, but for the moment couldn't speak.

"Eh?" Ducroy insisted, with an accent of exasperation. "Why do you stand glaring at me like that—eh? Come, monsieur, what ails you? I have arranged everything. I say. Where is mademoiselle?"

Lanyard made a broken gesture. "She is gone," he muttered forlornly.

Instantly the countenance of the stout Frenchman was lighted with a gleam of eager interest—romance lover that he was—and he stepped nearer, peering closely into the face of the adventurer.

"Gone?" he echoed. "Mademoiselle? Your sweetheart, eh?"

Lanyard assented with a disconcerting nod and sigh. Impudently Ducroy caught him by the sleeve.

"Come!" he insisted, tugging—"come at once into the house. Now, monsieur—now at length you enlist all one's sympathies! Come, I say! Is it your desire that I catch my death of cold?"

Indifferently Lanyard suffered himself to be led away. He was, indeed, barely conscious of what was happening. All his being was possessed by the thought that she had forsaken him.

CHAPTER XXII.

Enigma.

Lanyard had found no reason to believe that Lucy had left him otherwise than voluntarily, or that their adventures at the homes of Mme. Omber and M. Ducroy had been noted by spies of the Pack. The testimony of his own wife assured him that they hadn't been followed at any time subsequent to leaving the Rue des Acacias; their way had been too long and purposely too involved, and his vigilance too lively for that. Left to herself there in the garden for a quarter-hour, she had been free to think independently for almost the first time since she had descended from the studio.

Then, horror overcoming her, she had fled the garden—wildly, blindly, he didn't doubt—and probably had sought refuge in some obscure hotel till morning. What then? She had neither money nor any friends in Paris, but had mentioned some personal jewelry she planned to pawn.

That would be her first move, then, to a pawnbroker's, where he must seek her—not to force himself again upon her, but to follow at a distance and watch over her, to ward off any attempt on Bannan's part to interfere.

The government pawnshop had its attraction for Lanyard as well; he was there before the doors were open for the day—was the first to enter; and fortified by loans negotiated on his watch, cigarette case, and a ring or two, retired to a nearby cafe which commanded a view of the entrance to the establishment on the Rue des Blancs-Manteaux and settled himself against a day-long vigil.

It wasn't easy; drowsiness buzzed in his brain and weighed his eyelids; now and again, involuntarily, he nodded over his glass of black coffee. And when evening came and the doors of the pawnshop were closed for the night he rose and stumbled off, telling himself that possibly he had napped a little without his knowledge and thus had missed her visit.

Engaging obscure lodgings close by the Rue des Acacias, he slept till nearly noon of the following day, then rose to put into execution a design which had sprung full-winged from his brain at the moment of awakening.

He had his car and a chauffeur's license of long standing in the name of Pierre Lamier—was free, in short, to cruise at will the streets of Paris without lawful let or hindrance. And with the aid of a few judicious selections from the stock of a second-hand clothing shop and of a few other purchases at a chemist's, he felt tolerably sure that it would need keen eyes—whether the Pack's or the prefecture's—to identify Pierre Lamier with either Michael Lanyard or the Lone Wolf.

By the close of the third day he reluctantly conceded that she must have managed to escape from Paris without his aid.

Then he began to suspect that Bannan had fled Paris as well, for the most diligent investigation he was able to pursue unchallenged failed to unearth the least clue to the movements of the American subsequent to the fire at Troyon's.

Now, toward midnight of that same third day, Lanyard was driving slowly westward on the Boulevard de la Madeleine when a limousine of familiar aspect rounded a corner half a block ahead and, drawing up in front of Viel's, discharged four passengers.

The first was Wertheimer, and at sight of his rather striking figure, arrayed for the evening in apparel from Bond Street, Lanyard slackened speed.

Turning as he alighted, the Englishman offered his hand to a young woman, and a chauffeur driving immediately to the rear, swerving out to escape collision, shot past, cursing him liberally, while a sergeant de ville scowled darkly and uttered an imperative word.

Lanyard pulled himself together somehow and drove on. The girl was just then passing into the restaurant through the revolving door, Wertheimer attending her, while De Morbihan had alighted from the car and was lending a solicitous arm to Bannan.

But to these last Lanyard paid little attention. Quite automatically he passed Viel's, rounded the Madeleine, and turned up the Boulevard Malesherbes. Paris and all its brisk midnight traffic swung by without claiming a tithe of his attention—he was mainly conscious of lights that reeled dizzily round him, like a multitude of staring, malicious, mocking eyes.

At the junction with the Boulevard Hausmann a second sergeant de ville roused him with a warning about careless driving. He went more sanely thereafter, but with a heart of utter wretchedness—his eyes still wore a dazed expression, and now and again he shook his head impatiently, as though to rid it of a swarm of tormenting thoughts.

So it seemed he had all along been her dupe; that all the while he had been ostentatiously shielding her from harm and diffidently showing her every evidence of his devotion she had been laughing in her sleeve and planning to return with her report of a fool self-hoodwinked to the service she had pretended to despise.

A great anger welled in his bosom: Turning round, he made back to the Boulevard de la Madeleine, and on one pretext and another contrived to haunt the neighborhood of Viel's until the party came out, something after one o'clock.

It was evident they had supped merrily; the girl showed every sign of the gayest humor; Wertheimer seemed a bit exhilarated, De Morbihan was plainly much amused, and even Bannan—bearing heavily on the Frenchman's arm—was chuckling appreciatively. The party piled back into De Morbihan's limousine and were driven up the Avenues des Champs-Élysées, pausing at the Elysee Palace hotel to drop Bannan and the girl—his daughter?—whoever she was!

Whether it went thereafter Lanyard didn't trouble to ascertain. He drove morosely home and went to bed, though not to sleep for many hours—bitterness of disillusion ate like an acid into his heart.

Grip and Pneumonia Go Hand in Hand—How to Avoid Every-Day Dangers

Public warning is given to avoid the danger from poisonous drugs and nerve-destroying stimulants contained in so many grip and cough cures at this time. Look on the label of these preparations and you will see that they contain either morphine, heroin, cocaine, chloroform or other dangerous narcotics which should be taken only under a doctor's orders, or poisons such as acetanilide.

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

How to Make Want Ads Pay

Example No. 10

How Regular Want Ad Patronage Can Build Business

The Want Ad opens a field for steady advertising, and especially in the selling of goods regularly, securing agents, where many are needed, or offering professional or business services.

The Want Ad, however, is a sort of current offer, and a mere standing card, while offering certain publicity, does not carry along that running interest that becomes an argument when it is encountered time after time by the readers of the Want Ad columns.

Take, as one example, a contractor. Let us see how he could profitably employ the Want Ad columns day after day.

We give just three such Want Ads to convey the idea:

THE FIRST WANT AD	COMMENT
PLUMBING CONTRACTING services based on long experience, satisfied patrons, and a steady enlarging business. Do let your plumbing contract until you have consulted—	This is a general appeal. The contractor might be inclined to keep this card standing. It is valuable in its place—or to use now and then.
THE SECOND WANT AD	COMMENT
WE FURNISH THE PLUMBING for the new Lincoln School, for the Admore residence, for the new court-house. Let us figure on your—on merit only. Address—	This shows that the firm is doing things. Here is an appeal plus references.
THE THIRD WANT AD	COMMENT
THREE MORE PLUMBING contracts closed. We have just been awarded the contract on the Jefferson School, the Atwood building and the Smith residence. Let us figure on yours!	The idea is followed up by evidence of still greater achievements. The force of these Want Ads becomes cumulative.

The Want Ad becomes a sort of permanent salesman for you. Regard it as one of your best business-bringers, and treat it that way. Used with a view to keeping abreast of progress,

The Want Ad Can Bring Business All the Time!

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 11.

Deadly but controllable and preventable diseases are attacking men and women as well as children. Are we seeking the cause?

Of the total number of deaths recorded among the 65.1 per cent of our population, leaving 34.9 per cent unrecorded, tuberculosis of the lungs, tuberculous meningitis, and tuberculosis of the glands and bones were responsible for 95,421 deaths in the last year reported.

These figures represent only the number of those who perished of tuberculosis in that year, not the number of those who were afflicted with it, or incapacitated by it, or made to die through its visitation upon them.

Fifty-eight thousand nine hundred and seventy-three died of diarrhoea, and this number includes in no manner the number who during the year were stricken with diarrhoea and recovered. It simply indicates the fatal cases, representative of the wide prevalence and gravity of this disease.

Cancer, rapidly on the increase, was responsible for 49,928 deaths. Dr. Curtis E. Lakeman of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, at the annual convention of the public health section of the Southern Medical association at Dallas, Texas, Nov. 8, 1915, declared that cancer is increasing rapidly, that the United States has now 50,000 new cases each year.

Bright's disease, also on the increase, with acute nephritis, was responsible for 65,100 deaths. These two diseases alone, which, as will be shown, authorities are now beginning to trace to food abuses, were responsible for the third largest number of deaths. This means that hundreds of thousands who have not yet died have cancer, nephritis or Bright's disease.

Appendicitis and diabetes, also rapidly on the increase, stalk along with menacing men as important attendants of the great executioner.

The National Association for the Study of Tuberculosis reports that in the year 1911 $14,500,000 was spent throughout the country in the war against tuberculosis. About the same amount was spent in the year 1910. Since that time large sums have been spent. Of the total sum spent last year nearly $15,000,000 was spent in the treatment of consumptives in sanatoriums and hospitals. Millions of dollars were spent by anti-tuberculosis associations, open air schools, dispensaries, and boards of health.

New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts spent nearly $10,000,000 annually fighting this disease. In the early part of 1912 state legislatures and other public bodies appropriated over $10,000,000 to continue the work. The reason for this expenditure is to arouse in you for your own sake some interest in this stupendous tragedy.

They show that a little army of public men and women fighting out there in the field of sorrow with such poor weapons as they have.

They throw the light upon another weapon within easy reach, a weapon long neglected, the use of which can be learned not only by the adult but even by the child.

Corns Come Off Like Panama Peel

Wonderful, Simple "Geta-It" Never Fails to Remove Any Corn Easily.

"Wouldn't it just you? Here I've been going along for years with corns and corns after another, trying to get rid of them with salves that eat off the toes, tapes that stick to the stockings, bandages and plasters that make a package of the toes, trying blood-bringing razors at 25c each. Then I heard of a corn cure and I bought it. It's the new way, painless, wonderful. It's the new way, never hurts healthy flesh or irritates. Nothing to press on the corn. Never fails. Quit the old way for once and away and try "Geta-It" tonight. For corns, calluses and bunions.

"Geta-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by P. O. order to Chicago, Ill. Sold in Janesville and vicinity by Red Cross Pharmacy and McCue & Sons.

THINK OF THINGS TO ADVERTISE

You, Mrs. Up-to-Date Housewife, are you making full usage of the opportunities offered by the WANT ADS of your leading daily paper?

Are you thinking of all the ways to advertise in the WANT ADS of The Gazette? How about a maid? How about the lost article? How about something to sell? Isn't there a vacant room about?

All of these matters and a myriad more are best attended to by a WANT AD in The Gazette. You are taking the shortest possible cut toward results when you use a Gazette WANT AD.

Remember in Janesville everybody takes the Gazette.
